

Northdoor Launches System i Security Services Based on Raz-Lee's iSecurity Product Line

London UK – 8th December 2008: Northdoor, an independent IT consultancy and provider of full lifecycle solutions to the financial services industry and others, is pleased to announce a distributorship agreement with Raz-Lee Security. Raz-Lee is an internationally recognized developer of software solutions for IBM System i (AS/400) systems, focusing on system security, productivity and system management solutions.

According to the agreement, Northdoor will distribute Raz-Lee's iSecurity product line in the United Kingdom and Ireland. iSecurity provides a powerful set of tools for managing System i servers in network environments and includes application data security, user management, extensive compliance and reporting capabilities, real-time alerts and more.

Northdoor has been providing System i expertise to many organisations for over 19 years, and considers System i Security a vital part of an overall strategy for information safety and compliance management. Today's focus on information security and regulatory compliance, along with customer and auditor's requirements, have led Northdoor to launch specialist services in order to assist organisations wishing to enhance security of their System i systems .

“Never in the last 50 years has security of company information and regulatory compliance been higher on the CEO's agenda,” said AJ Thompson, Sales Director at Northdoor. “The unique point about Raz-Lee's iSecurity software is that along with its powerful capabilities, it deploys easily in both GUI and green-screen environments, remaining transparent to users and information security managers”.

“Raz-Lee Security is delighted that Northdoor is joining our long list of world-wide distributors. Northdoor's presence in the UK and Irish markets together with iSecurity's set of tools for securing System i servers and applications, will bring tangible benefits to large enterprises and SMBs alike,” said Eli Spitz, Vice President of Business Development at Raz-Lee Security .
